And best of all, these units have already been put into many hundred thousands of humble homes, old and new, town and city. If Americans were not so wasteful, no inhabited building of any kind in this country would be without an outfit of IDEAL Boilers and AMERICAN Radiators. They are a paying investment—not an expense.

They save as much in fuel, need so little care, protect the family health, do away with repair bills, give costly longest life to furnishings because of absence of dirt, dust, heat and condensation, will wear as long as the building stands and finally enable you to sell at less than the original price at a quicker, higher price.

WONES IN STIRRING TALK AT Y. M. C. A. ON "A GOOD FIGHT"

180 Attend Sunday Older Boys' Meeting—Special Music Was Pleasing—Good Habits Are Urged.

Speaking in his usual conversational style, W. H. "Daddy" Wones gave a stirring address at the Sunday afternoon meeting at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday, taking as his subject "A Good Fight."

Over 180 listeners, composed in the majority of boys, and perhaps fifty men, heard the address on the right of a fight, how it should be carried on, and on how to form and keep the good habits and to throw away the bad habits.

Many examples of fight, as shown in athletes, were given. "Daddy" Wones had the attention of his audience from the very beginning of his talk. "In all that same fight, as you use in athletes, into your character," said Wones, "make it a good fight character, for that amounts to more than the good fight in football or rowing, or any other sport, yes, a hundred times more, in the character of a man."

"I say out smoking, which in itself is injurious to the body and mind. It weakens mental powers and shortens the breath of an athlete. Scientific facts will prove my statement. I need not merely say so because I believe smoking is not a good thing. I have letters here written by Connie Knick, the greatest football player that ever lived, and from Ben Johnson, American league president, who both object to smoking, and who discourage the habit in their own ball clubs. The greatest football player that ever lived, and from Ben Johnson, American league president, who both object to smoking, and who discourage the habit in their own ball clubs."

"I will refer to you the simple method of Abrahamson used when talking to the boys at the recent Fond du Lac conference. Abrahamson, as you know, has been the sensation on the football squad at Lawrence College for four years. Abrahamson said, 'As I have never smoked in my life, I cannot tell you of its dangers. I will let others tell you about that habit.' I tell you, listeners, that was the best I have heard in many years. Think of the example that young men and boys in such a statement. He knew nothing of smoking."

"Boys could take it upon themselves if they would, and form a club that stood against bad habits. It would be surprising to note what the results in a community would be. Just get a leader, and the rest would follow. We have a coach, who will aid us. If we will adhere to his training, we will win the fight right."

"Throughout his address Wones attempted to stick to his subject, and in a very short time he had covered a vast field of facts, and that no boy or man could argue against. His talk was indeed an uplifting one, and was thoroughly inspiring to all who listened."

The special music of the afternoon was highly commended upon. The Trinity choir opened the meeting with an anthem, after the audience had joined in some rousing songs. Led by Alfred Olson, Supv. H. C. Buell led in prayer, followed by a selection "Now the Day is Over" by the Carillon Boys' Quartet. A responsive service was led by the choir, and was followed by a song service. Several young men gave short prayers at the request of "Daddy" Wones, after which the benediction was given by Rev. Joseph Chalmers Hazen of the Baptist church.

The meeting and program was carefully arranged by the members of the Boys' Cabinet. Paul Richards, president of the group, presided at the meeting. The auditorium was decorated for the occasion and the boys are to be congratulated for the splendid way in which they carried the meeting through.

Observe Wedding Anniversary: Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Thomas of the town of La Prairie will entertain friends this evening on the occasion of their tenth wedding anniversary. Several sleigh loads of Janesville people will attend the festivities.

TWO NOTED ARTISTS TO GIVE A RECITAL

Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Shaw, Pianist and Violinist, Secured for Concert Saturday Evening.

The next recital of the Apollo Club will be given Saturday evening, January 10th, at Library Hall. Critics are especially pleased with the program.

The recital will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Shaw, two noted artists, Mr. Shaw a pianist and Mrs. Shaw a violinist. Both Mr. and Mrs. Shaw are artists well known in both Europe and America. They are forced to give up their musical vocation in Europe on account of the war, and since the opening of the war have returned to America, hence it has been possible to secure them to appear before the Apollo Club.

Mrs. Shaw is a native of India and is a violinist of rare ability. Her playing is pronounced by critics as especially sweet and sympathetic. Mr. Shaw is a man of splendid personality, standing about six feet and four inches tall, and his years of study in both Europe and America has enabled him to become a great artist in his chosen profession.

Apollo Club members have in store for them a splendid treat in hearing Mr. and Mrs. Shaw.

It may be of interest to know that Mr. and Mrs. Shaw pursued their studies for a time in Stuttgart, Germany, where they became acquainted with Mr. and Mrs. Gollner. The Gollners were so highly charmed with the Shaw's musical ability that they wrote friends in Janesville, expressing the hope that the Apollo Club would have the opportunity of hearing the Shaw's play. This is more than a year ago. Owing to the strange fortunes of war, their wish has become a reality.

CUTTER WITH FOUR IS TIPPED BY CAR

Stanley Peters, Chicago, Former Janesville Man, Has Compound Collar Bone Fracture.

Stanley Peters, Chicago, a fountain pen company foreman, suffered a compound fracture of the right collar bone and other injuries Saturday night when tipped from a cutter by a street car near the city limits on North Washington street. On the cutter were Peters, his five-year-old son, his brother, Leslie, a town of Janesville farmer, and the latter's wife. A thick fog which obscured the approaching car was responsible for the accident.

The injured man was removed to the hospital, where his injuries were dressed, and he was removed Sunday to his brother's home. Although badly shaken up the other occupants of the cutter were not injured. Stanley Peters is a former resident of Janesville. He arrived here at nine-thirty Saturday evening for a visit with relatives.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

POVERTY STRICKEN VOCABULARIES.

When one knows a person intimately for many years, one can frequently tell just about what he will say under any given conditions. It is a more or less common experience with most of us to find ourselves echoing in our mind the answer of some friend before he has spoken. Is it telepathy? Perhaps so. It is by no means unthinkable that minds so attuned should sound thought waves to each other, just as the wireless instruments send sound waves. But I think there is also a less interesting and more prosaic factor in this situation.

One reason why we know what our friend is likely to say is that we know his vocabulary. And that vocabulary is not sufficiently extended to make it difficult to select the words he will use. Because we understand the trend of his mind, we know what he will think; because we are familiar with his vocabulary we know how he will express it.

How Many Words Do You Use?

The vocabulary of the average man has been estimated at about 500 words. The vocabulary used by Shakespeare was three hundred or four hundred. That shows what the human mind is capable of. Compare that with the 500 that you or I as the average man, use and let us think shamo to ourselves that we are content to be so poverty-stricken.

Just think there must be at least 100,000 words in the dictionary (I am computing roughly from my dictionary, as I have no exact information at hand), and you and I, with all this wealth at our command, get along with less than a hundredth part of our whole resources. What misers we are to be sure. Of course you understand that 500 words represents a man's speaking and not his reading vocabulary. We meet words in books day after day and understand them perfectly and yet never think of introducing them into our conversation. Why should we? Why should we have familiar, simple words that express our meaning just as well.

Because these words do not express our meaning just as well, in a broad way they serve our purpose, they do not express exact shades of meaning. They make it possible for us to be articulate, but not to be accurate.

The artist, expressing his conception of a landscape in pigment on canvas, has recourse not only to the tube marked "Green" to paint trees and grass, but only to the tube marked "Blue" to paint the sky, but to many other colors that express more subtle and definitely the exact shade he wishes to express. The better the artist, the closer and more subtle his interpretation of the many shades of nature. And the better the conversationalist, the closer and more subtle his expression of the many shades of meaning.

Making a Friend of the Dictionary.

The breadth and accuracy of a man's speaking vocabulary is the surest hall mark of his culture. Don't be afraid to use the words you find in books. If you can't pronounce them or fully understand their meaning, look them up in your dictionary.

And have the dictionary handy. Don't stow it away in the bookcase where it is a painful task to consult it. Make it part of your family life; a member of the family circle. Make a friend of it and teach your children to do the same and it will surely be a good friend to you and yours.

HAS REASONS FOR BEING INTERESTED IN EUROPEAN WAR

New photograph of the Czarina.

Few persons occupy a more interested position in the present European crisis than the Czar's consort, for she is not only a German herself, but is also the first cousin of King George of England, the sister-in-law of Prince Louis of Battenberg, England's late first see lord, and the sister-in-law of the Kaiser's sailor brother, Admiral Prince Henry of Prussia, who is trying to destroy the Russian navy. She was born forty-two years ago and married the Czar in 1894.

"How blind some men are," said her friend, softly.

"Yes, blind and deaf," replied Mrs. Langdon.

STUDENTS OF LATIN DINE LIKE ROMANS

Unique Entertainment Given Saturday Evening at High School, Including Latin Play.

It is really those who have children in school, could not have participated in the Latin banquet and play given in the gymnasium of the high school Saturday evening. The work of the students and teachers upon the results accomplished in the study of this classic language were worthy of greater publicity. The entire setting, decorations and costumes were in keeping with the Roman period from the arrangement of the banquet tables and their decorations to the costumes of those seated at the tables as well as those who waited upon their lords and masters at table. Many of these costumes were unique and beautiful as well, and with some 150 diners the scene was truly realistic.

The program was carried through in its entirety and each number rendered in a manner denoting the care and study which had been placed thereon. Superintendent Buell, as toastmaster, in the garb of a Roman, introduced the various speakers in his usual pleasing way and among other things referred to the fact that Harvard University had requested the name of the high school student whose standings were highest during the four years now passing. Sherwood Sheldon held the highest average and his name has been forwarded to that school of learning.

Several of the speakers referred to the idea which seems prevalent of doing away with the dead languages in modern education. Each was strong in the conviction that the study of Latin was a most necessary adjunct to mind training—in fact Miss Zeiniger, Mr. Hooper and Mr. Brandt were a unit in their addresses upon the great good derived from its study. Professor Brandt is from the University of Wisconsin, and with the school members were guests at the banquet.

The play, "Reditus Ulixis," was splendidly given, and the ease with which the actors spoke their parts, entirely in Latin, was little short of marvellous. It demonstrated the painstaking care and hard work of both teachers and students. Much credit is due Miss Alice Donnelly, teacher of Latin, and Professor J. T. Sheator, for the complete preparation and successful rendition of so charming an entertainment. They became personally responsible for the entire program.

REV. EWING GIVES TWO ABLE SERMONS

Former Missionary Will Occupy Pulpit Next Sunday.—Arrange Social Gathering for This Week.

Rev. and Mrs. Charles E. Ewing arrived in Janesville on Saturday noon, and are the guests of Miss S. A. and Mrs. G. South Jackson street, where those desiring to get in communication can locate them. Rev. Ewing is a member of the First Presbyterian church next Sunday. Yesterday he delivered two masterful addresses from which notes were taken as follows:

"Morning service he dealt with three grades of efficiency, that of physical might or brute force, which specially characterizes the primitive man; that of physical force, reinforced with mental training, such as characterizes the modern college athlete; and that of spiritual culture, which dominates both brute force and intellectual power, such as was pre-eminently shown in the life of the Saviour. "Jesus undoubtedly possessed a high degree of physical power and endurance," said the speaker. "His contest with the learned men of his time showed that he had a keen intellectual power, but the principal element of his power was spiritual, illustrated by many incidents of his life whereby his personal presence inspired such awe in those who looked upon him that what ever purpose he had to do him violence might have been left back in helplessness before him."

In the evening, Mr. Ewing spoke of durable buildings. It was a practical, simple address, illustrating the value of preparations which men make

PANTALETS UNDER RUFFLED SKIRT

This striking gown might have stepped from a d'querreotype of the forties, but it will actually be worn at a pre-lenten dance. The skirt, a quaint shirred and twisted affair of gold colored taffetas with a tucked ruffle, is lifted to show the pantalets of ruffled tulle. The bodice is exceedingly negligible, a wisp of tulle over the shoulder and short puffed sleeves of taffetas being all there is to it.

preparatory to building, the different kinds of material and workmanship used in building and the cost, and the general utility of building, and thus illustrated the development of character and the creation of those things which pertain to the quality of permanent and useful human development.

In order to give the people of the parish an opportunity conveniently to meet Mr. and Mrs. Ewing, the committee have arranged for informal social gatherings as follows:

Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Jeffris, 626 St. Lawrence avenue.

Wednesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred E. Sutherland, 331 North Washington street. The people on each side of the river will thus have an opportunity at a convenient point to drop in and spend a few minutes between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30. It is hoped that the friends will feel free to come and go between the hours named.

On Tuesday evening Mr. Ewing will be invited to attend the Twilight club and Mrs. Ewing the Leani Band. Thursday evening is fully provided for.

Friday evening is the regular choir meeting and that occasion will be broadened out sufficiently to include the officers of the church and society and members of the music committee.

EDISON VISITS SCENES OF HIS YOUTH

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Edison.

Accompanied by his wife, Thomas A. Edison the inventor has just been visiting the little town of Milan, Ohio, his birthplace. They have also been reviving old memories at Mrs. Edison's girlhood home at Akron, following a trip over the old route leading out of Port Huron, Mich., where Edison did business as a "news butcher," when a boy.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
School Handkerchiefs—The sleeves, fronts and backs of worn-out white waists, cut into handkerchief squares and hemmed, make nice, soft school handkerchiefs for little school girls and boys, who are so hard on handkerchiefs, and, if lost, there is not much loss.

To prevent Rats and Mice from molesting meat, when hanging in smokehouse—Take a sheet of sticky flypaper, make it fanner shape, and put over meat; fatten small shape, and put over meat; fatten small shape, and put over meat, with string or safety pin.

Cheap Dustcloths—Mix half pint raw linseed oil and one-fourth pint each of cider vinegar and turpentine. Saturate cheap cheesecloth—not very moist. This will last as long as six 25-cent dustcloths, will not cost more than the price of one and just as good.

White Window Shades—Save the old rollers and flat sticks and get a good piece of white cotton cloth. Cut into lengths to fit your windows. Hem bottom to run flat stick through. If it is the right width for windows, leave selvage edge; if too wide, hem both sides. Starch stiff and iron smooth. Tack to rollers, using tiny tacks from old shades (larger ones will interfere with the spring). Hang up and you will be surprised at the nice effect. They can be taken down and washed as often as you like and will always be beautiful and white. They can be used for a good many years as shades, then washed and made into aprons, pillow slips, laundry bags or anything that a piece of white goods may be needed for.

THE TABLE.
Mock Maple Syrup—Take enough sugar (granulated) with black coffee (not too strong) to make a syrup to suit; add to the syrup a little extract of vanilla. A very good substitute for maple syrup.
Roast Rabbit—Clean and dress, removing head and feet (some leave head on); lay in salt water about half an hour, then rinse in cold water; wipe dry, rub inside with salt, laundry soap or anything that will clean a little melted butter, pepper and salt, half cup sausage meat, a little sage. Sew or tie up the opening and place rabbit in roasting pan in which are a few thin slices of salt pork. Sprinkle with pepper and salt. Place in moderately hot oven and bake frequently. Bake about one and one-half hours. Baste with butter and water that should be in the pan. When done, remove carefully so as not to break it, remove strings and serve with slices of the dripping in the pan, adding water if not enough.

Cake—One and one-half pounds butter creamed, fifteen egg yolks (beaten), one and one-half pounds sugar, Beat well and sift in two cups flour, one quart (any brand) (canned) will do for this pudding. Beat egg and sugar together until creamy, add milk, flour and baking powder, beating until a smooth batter. Pour fruit into deep granite baking dish, pour over batter and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven. This makes a delicious dessert; enough for six.

Nut Cake—One cup white sugar, half cup lard, pinch salt, one cup sweet milk, two teaspoons baking powder in two cups flour, one cup nut meats. Bake about half hour.

Iceing: Pulverized sugar mixed with a little milk. Place half nut meats on iceing.

Devil food can be made by leaving out nut meats and mixing half cup cocoa with the sugar.
Fine raisin cake is made by using one cup of raisins in place of nut meats, or use spices to make good fruit cake. Also makes good white cake by leaving out nut meats; make pretty pink iceing by mixing pulverized sugar with juice or canned cherries, strawberries or cranberries. Make lemon extract and make iceing by mixing pulverized sugar with lemon juice.

"LADY BUGS"—THAT'S WHAT THESE WIVES OF BASEBALL STARS CALL THEMSELVES

"Lady Bugs" is the latest title for women baseball fans. With the return to this country last week of the National and American league teams from Honolulu, Mrs. J. P. Henry, whose husband is catcher for the Washington Americans, and Mrs. M. G. Cary, the wife of Pittsburgh's center fielder, brought this term, which they apply to themselves.

WHY FAMOUS PASTRY COOKS USE K C BAKING POWDER

The patrons of our first class hotels and restaurants are exacting—they demand the best. Women go where the pastry and cakes are noted for their excellence. Men are attracted by hot bread and biscuits—when fresh and moist and light.

The pastry cook with a reputation uses K C Baking Powder because he knows that results are certain; every time everything is as good as his best.

Then, too, with K C Baking Powder he can mix the various kinds of batter before the rush of the meal begins and bake as needed so that every order goes to the table fresh and hot, yet the last he bakes are just as good as the first.

The reasons behind these reasons is that K C is really a blend of two baking powders. One commences to give off leavening gas as soon as moistened. The other requires both moisture and heat to make it active. Dough or batter will remain in a partially leavened condition for hours, and when put in the oven, will come up as light as a feather mixed a moment before.

For cookies, pancakes, omelets and the like, which cannot all be baked at once, K C is indispensable. For all baking the double raise makes doubly certain.

Follow the example of the professional cook and your baking will be equal to his.

The Wife's Money

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

"Yes, I am a divorced woman and money troubles were at the bottom of my difficulties," said Mrs. Langdon.

"I saw a statement in a paper the other day that made me furious. A judge of a court of domestic relations was quoted in the paper as saying that the old system under which the man had absolute control of the money was the ideal one and that divorces would not cease until women ceased to be financially independent. Her eyes snapped and she gave me the fire a victim's job."

"That judge was over sixty, believe me," answered her friend, looking into her vanity box and patting her hair.

"I suppose his wife rises nightly and rifles his pockets to get a little needed cash," continued the divorcee, with prices attached. If men would only realize that women can be trusted with the family money as well as the family honor, there would not be so large a crowd of women flocking to the divorce courts."

"But some women are not to be trusted with money," said her friend, snapping the box and laying it on the table.

"If a man finds he has married a woman like that his first business should be patiently to train her to assume responsibility in money matters, not to keep her irresponsible by treating her like a child. Even if he is generous, he may die and leave her to starve," or suffer from his mismanagement," said Mrs. Langdon.

"That's a mother's job, not a husband's," said her friend.

"True enough. Mothers lot their girls grow up with no financial training I cannot imagine, but if a man marries one of these poor, untrained creatures it surely is up to him to educate her, not to repress her."

"When I was first married," continued Mrs. Langdon, "I asked Carl for an allowance. He said he did not think that was necessary, as he would settle all bills. And we had midnight sessions every month when he went over the itemized accounts. They usually ended in scenes, for it angered me to have to justify every cent of my purchases. I was not allowed to have money even for car fare. He gave me tickets, if you please."

"Wonder you stood it," said her friend.

"Stood it! You have never been married. Do you think, like that judge, that women for a trivial discontent are going to get a divorce? Let you a woman will endure and endure and continue to endure before she is desperate enough to seek separation. Marriage is a solemn thing. She relapsed into silence and gazed into the blazing coals.

"What finally drove you to get a divorce?" asked her friend.

"I tried earning my own money after my baby died, hoping by eliminating financial friction to patch things up. It didn't like that and sneeringly told me since I was so crazy to earn my own money, I could support myself entirely, and he left me. I would never have broken the bond myself, but I am for happier alone. He had begun to hate me and hate shrivels the souls," answered Mrs. Langdon.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—My, But Father Is Making It Pretty Strong!

THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR THIS PAPER MADE WITH THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO. (Copyright, 1914, by John Fleming Wilson.)

This silent, but exceedingly obtrusive personage having retired at last, Ruth studied her surroundings. When she had completed her survey she thought to herself that there were two things wanting. One was a silk haired Persian cat and the other a flaming colored scarf across the bed that completed the altogether of an apartment severely luxurious. Then she tried to analyze the odor, delicate yet insistent, which she was ever afterward to associate with Jean Darnell and her experience in New York.

At last she traced it to some perfid flowers in the great green and dark red vase, whose unwholesome beauty was that of plants whose roots have never been in good, sound soil. They looked to her much like lilies, whose pads had dotted on some dark and opalescent pool, viscid with odors of the night. She was still staring at these and sniffing their scent through widened nostrils when Mrs. Darnell knocked on the door and entered slowly. She had changed her street gown for a negligee, which instantly caught the girl's appreciative eye.

"You look beautiful," she said quickly. Jean Darnell turned her tawny eyes on her and smiled faintly. "I am not usually up until noon," she responded, "and—I am getting old, my dear." She threw out her jeweled hands with a sparkling gesture of half comic resignation. Ruth laughed.

"John Dorr says everybody gets old in New York. Don't you like him?" Mrs. Darnell looked into the clear eyes of the girl and almost failed to follow her baser instinct. But at that loose throat she saw the heavy gold of "The Master Key." As if it had supernatural powers, the sight of that key locked the door of her heart. "Of course I like John," she said easily. "We must get everything fixed up now. George will be here—George Everett, of course, I mean—tonight, and you and he can talk the business over."

"You know, we simply must have the money," Ruth returned earnestly. "The mine isn't paying now, but John knows where we can find the mother lode again; then we'll be rich."

"Ah!" said Jean Darnell. "You're selling stock, I presume?"

"I own it all," Ruth returned proudly. "It's my mine. My father left it to me when he died." She did not see the sudden hatred that slowly flamed in Jean Darnell's eyes fairly blazed.

In her own room she stood a moment breathless. Then she tore off her feecy negligee in an intensity of silent rage and despair, seen only by the unheeded eyes of the god whom she had defied.

It is wickedness, not virtue, which is theatrical, and at this moment Jean Darnell flung herself into her evil passion with all the abandon of the tragedienne, only her voice was almost inaudible: "Tom Gallon, Tom Gallon, dead though you are, I'll have revenge!" When her fury had spent itself—and, like all physically indolent women, she could not yield long to emotion—she prepared her campaign.

First she called up George Drake and made certain that he would be at her home for dinner that evening. Then she called up two old acquaintances who were always glad to fill empty chairs at her well set table. This settled, she again sought Ruth and persuaded her from going down immediately to Everett's office.

"You must be very tired, my dear," Mrs. Darnell purred. "And, anyway, you know, in New York young ladies do not go about unescorted to men's business offices, and I cannot go with you until tomorrow or next day."

"That will be too late," cried Ruth. Mrs. Darnell opened her eyes wide, as if in surprise. "Mr. Everett is coming to dinner tonight," she said soothingly. "You can talk business to your heart's content right here."

"That will be much better," said Ruth. When her hostess was gone she stood by the window trying to think more calmly of all that had happened since she had left "The Master Key" mine, but one thought was prominent: "What was John Dorr doing?" She recalled that there was three hours' difference in time. It was now 2 o'clock in New York. Tom Kane would be just making his final preparations for dinner, and she could almost smell the odor of his coffee. These homely details occupied her mind tenderly for an hour; then she caught up and dressed herself for the street again. She had barely finished when the maid came in with tea, followed by Mrs. Darnell.

"My child, what in the world are you going to do?" asked Jean. "Look, we'll have tea together."

"I was going out for a walk," Ruth responded. "You know I have never been in New York, and it seems a shame to waste this fine afternoon. Anyway, I want some fresh air."

"What was John Dorr doing?"

Mrs. Darnell looked at her thoughtfully and smiled presently in a way that made Ruth flush. It seemed to her that she had been deceived.

"You had best have tea!" and the girl obediently removed her hat and jacket and sat down.

It seemed to her that the rest of the afternoon passed in flashes of such entertainment as she had never known. It must be remembered that Ruth, living in the mine nearly all her life since leaving school, had not had the advantages or the society of trained, alert, smart, clever women. Mrs. Darnell was very clever and she used her every art to keep Ruth's attention. She succeeded.

That night at dinner George Drake, posing as George Everett, suddenly flushed darkly and turned to the girl at his left. "Miss Gallon," he said in a whisper, flashing his dark eyes toward his hostess to see if she were watching. "I really hope that the trust you put in me you won't find misplaced. I'll do everything I can to help you, even if it is funny that I didn't know that John Dorr had red hair."

Ruth looked at him very soberly. "I don't just understand a great many things," she said. "It all seems so strange, Mr. Everett, and you know, I am worried. I ought to go to the Ritz Carlton and see if there are telegrams for me, for that's where John would wire me. I'm afraid Mrs. Darnell thinks I'm awfully impolite because I want to go and make sure for myself that John has not wired."

"I'll go myself," said the false Everett, looking at his plate. "I'll go tonight. In fact, I'll go right now." He caught Mrs. Darnell's eye and said apologetically: "I'm afraid, my dear hostess, I'll have to leave you. I have just remembered my solemn promise to be at the club at 8 o'clock, and, besides, I've promised Miss Gallon to go to the Ritz and get her mail and telegrams." He turned to Ruth, and she noticed a very grave look in his eyes, which she was to understand later. He beat gallantly over her hand and lightly kissed her fingers. "You may trust me," he said.

CHAPTER IX.

Master of the "Master Key" Mine.

When Ruth Gallon did not call upon him and he found himself unable to locate her—

Charles Everett was at a loss to do. He had wired Dorr of his anxiety about her and had received word in reply that the young engineer had received comforting messages. Unhappily for the girl, Everett was called out of town. And so when he found himself forced to make a hurried trip to San Francisco her predicament became the more pronounced.

The false Everett, George Drake, took it upon himself to call at the Ritz for her mail, and, returning with word that there was none for her, Ruth felt a strange premonition that matters were not progressing as they should.

Mrs. Darnell found her gazing out of the drawing room window, huddled in a pathetic little heap, dejection stamped on features and form.

"Dearest," purred the hostess, "you look as if you had lost your last friend on earth. Do cheer up. What is the trouble?"

Ruth turned her head, but remained in the same queer little attitude, replying in a plaintive voice:

"I do not understand why Mr. Dorr has not written or wired me. Really, Mrs. Darnell, I am beginning to fear that something has happened to him."

Mrs. Darnell looked at her searchingly, but recovered quickly under the questioning return gaze.

"Do not worry, Ruth. Everything will come out all right. Supposing we make a drive. The air and sunshine will do you a world of good."

Every minute was one of delight to the unsophisticated girl, and each new sight and vista opened a new world to her inexperienced mind. After a stop at Grant's tomb they speeded downtown, reaching Columbus circle after a run through Central park. A blowout of one of the tires caused a delay. Ruth tired of sitting in the car, and, jumping out, she spied a florist's window. Before Mrs. Darnell could think of the possibility of a misadventure of her well laid plans the girl was inside. She purchased violets for both and was on her way out when she saw a telephone. Intuitively, rather than from any other motive, she hastily called up Mr. Everett's office. To her amazement she learned that he had gone west.

Her news was even more startling to Mrs. Darnell than it had been to Ruth. Quick action was needed, and, leaving Ruth in the car with a prevaricated excuse, the older woman was soon phoning to Drake, telling him to go west at once and instructing him to meet them in San Francisco, where he was to pose as Everett and continue carrying out the plot to secure possession of Ruth's mining property.

And thus it came about that five days later found them in the metropolis of the Pacific coast, where they were met by Drake, still posing as Everett.

The greatest difficulty lay in reconciling Ruth's mind to the mystery of Everett's sudden departure after she had seen him at Mrs. Darnell's the night before. But the cleverness of the schemer counterbalanced all doubts, and the girl was therefore persuaded to hasten to San Francisco to carry out her plans.

Accordingly she wired Dorr, but again "the wires crossed," for, although he learned that she was going to the western city, he again learned that Everett had failed to connect with her.

Ruth had been gone many days, when John Dorr received another telegram from Everett that made his heart stop its regular beat. Alone in his cabin he pored over it as if there must be some hidden meaning beneath the words. It was unbelievable. After all his pain and his very careful forethought for her comfort and safety something had gone wrong. Everett was brief:

San Francisco, April 2.

John Dorr, Silent Valley, Cal.: Have been unable to find Miss Gallon.

EVERETT.

For awhile his mind refused to work logically. All that he could think of was little Ruth Gallon, she of the slender hands and pure eyes, lost in the great city and pitifully looking a familiar face. But he pulled himself vigorously together and called up the agent at the station.

"Bull," he said over the telephone. "This is Dorr. I want to get a wire through to San Francisco."

"All right, John, what is it?" John thought a moment and then dictated this message:

Charles Everett, Call Building, San Francisco.

Miss Gallon was to have gone to the St. Francis, as I wired you before. DORR.

After mulling over the problem he felt that he must confide in some one. Of all the men in the mine he trusted only Tom Kane. He strode down the hill to the cook shanty and found the old man engaged in his task of preparing the noonday meal.

"Look here, Tom," John said abruptly, holding out the telegram. "I haven't said anything before, but Ruth is lost in San Francisco. I've wired Everett before. He can't find her."

Without a word the cook reached for the yellow slip and read it slowly. He glanced up and said with the utmost simplicity: "I reckon you'd better catch this evening's express."

"But my work here—somebody has got to look after the mine and Wilkerson!"

Tom Kane glanced at him and then at the bit of paper. "I know how you feel," he muttered, "but I've cooked years enough to know that if you leave things on the fire they'll burn. This business won't wait." He smiled magnificently. "And you just leave this to me. I've been here since the mine started, and I guess I can attend to it from cook shanty to Wilkerson. The main thing is to find Ruth. I know she's safe, for nobody would hurt that little girl. But you've got to go to Frisco and help her. Likely she's found herself pretty much a stranger. I got lost in New Orleans once, and I reckon Frisco is bigger."

"I'll go," said Dorr promptly. "I'll leave my papers and my new plans in your charge, Tom."

The old man laid his warm hand on John's arm. "New plans?" he whispered. "Have you found the mother lode? Don't say anything to Wilkerson."

"But he is the superintendent?"

"CABIRIA"

Novelization of D'Annunzio's Spectacular Photoplay.

"I know of no child, he said. 'This Ethiopie came here alone.' 'Two of the guards of the temple leaped at Maciste. As a man brushes a brace of romping puppies from his path, Maciste bowed over the two soldiers. Then tossing his leopard skin mantle across his mighty shoulders, he strode, majestically towards the gates, saying:

"Lead on."

The Carthaginians treated Maciste as their Philistine ancestors had treated Samson of old. By a great chain they bound him to one of the city flour mills; and forced him to grind their grain.

Fulvius meantime made his way to Rome. There he joined the war fleet that was about to sail against Three-Pigeon. It was a disastrous expedition. For Archimedes by means of his famous sun mirrors set the whole Roman fleet afire. Fulvius, floating on a charred spar, was borne by the current to the shores of Sicily. There several farmhands chanced to find his senseless body. They carried him to his master—Batto.

On Fulvius' finger was Batto's talisman ring. Batto saw it and his suspicions and learned that his beloved little daughter had not perished in the earthquake nor at Moloch's Altar.

All Fulvius could tell Batto was that Cabiria had been alive and in Maciste's keeping when the patrician himself fled from Carthage, and that Maciste was also in flight. He promised to search for her should he ever find opportunity to visit Carthage again.

But ten years dragged by before this opportunity came. During those ten years Rome crouched in its lair, licking the grievous wounds of its lost Carthage war and planning a new campaign. During those years, too, Sophonisba had guarded Cabiria, making a companion-maid of her and retaining her "Elissa," Sophonisba had not married Massinissa. The latter had been beaten in battle by Syphax, King of Cyra, and Hasdrubal, who had no use for a loser, had broken off the betrothal and bestowed Sophonisba's hand on Syphax.

Massinissa, in rage at his rejection now joined forces with Rome, vowing vengeance against both Hasdrubal and Syphax. For he had loved Sophonisba, and he still loved her. He swore to win her from Syphax and to punish Hasdrubal. Rome could help him to his revenge, so he became Rome's ally.

And now a new Roman army invaded Carthage, an army led by a crafty general, Scipio Africanus. At Scipio's side marched Massinissa. And on Scipio's personal staff was Fulvius Axilla.

Because Fulvius knew Carthage, the general sent him into the city as a spy. To enter Carthage in war time was well nigh impossible. Every gate was guarded and double guarded.

None might pass in without rigid inspection—an inspection which would quickly have detected Fulvius or any other Roman. On either side of the gate rose the walls to dizzy heights.

To enter Carthage was a feat that would tax the wisest brain. And Fulvius Axilla was the one man who could solve the problem.

He approached the city from a side whose walls were so high as to make the presence of sentinels seem endless.

"Look here, Hiram," said Si, "when be you goin' to pay me them eight dollars fer pasturin' your heifer?"

"I've had her now fer 'bout ten weeks."

"Why, Si, ther critter ain't worth more'n ten dollars."

"Well, supposin' I keep her fer what you owe me?"

"Not by a jugful! Tell you what I'll do; keep her two weeks more an' you can have her."

Among seven noted men who were to speak at the opening exercises of a new school was a professor well known for his lapses of memory.

But his speech was clear that night and as he seated himself his loving wife felt that he had fully earned the burst of applause that followed, and she clapped her little hands enthusiastically. Then her cheeks crimsoned.

"Did you see anything amusing about the close of my address, my dear?" asked the professor as they started for him. "It seemed as if I heard sounds suggestive of merriment about me."

"Well, dear," said she, "of all the people who applauded your address you clapped the loudest and longest."

"I understand that your nearest neighbor, Lizardville, adopted prohibition," "Yes," replied Three-Pigeon. "I understand that your nearest neighbor, Lizardville, adopted prohibition."

A German medical journal, the Munch Medizinsche Wochenschrift, gives a curious story of two cases of poisoning from nutmeg, an article in daily use in food and drink. Two servant girls partook of a mixture made up of two ground nutmegs, a small quantity of powdered cinnamon and half a liter, about one pint, of hot wine. One girl drank the greater part the other but a small portion. Both were taken to the hospital unconscious. The one who drank the greater part remained in a stupor for three days and it was not until the fifth day that she recovered her senses. The other, who like the first developed failure of memory, vertigo and somnolence, was not so long in recovery. Nutmeg contains an ethereal oil that is a recognized poison.

FEARFUL HUMOR COVERED FACE—RESINOL CURED

Paterson, N. J., Dec. 9, 1913: "About a year ago my face began to crack and get scaly in blotches. It soon got worse and my face was all spotted and rough, and it itched me very much at night, and caused me no end of discomfort. After a month or so, pimples and blackheads began to show, first in small numbers and then gradually covering my entire face. It was awful. The pimples were sore and the rash was itchy and my face had a most unsightly appearance. I could get no relief. Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment caused me instant relief. By the time another jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap were gone, I can truthfully say that it was a complete cure. My face had assumed its former color and looks, due to Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. They are, I think, the best for any skin trouble." (Signed) Robert Troyano, 299 E. 21st Street. Mme. Slavko Grouitch in Red Cross uniform.

When the story of Serbia's part in the world war comes to be written the name of an American woman—Mme. Slavko Grouitch, who was Mabel Condon Dunlop of Virginia—will deserve to be inscribed in letters of gold. The wife of a distinguished Serbian diplomat, who was counselor of his government legation in London until a few months before the war began, she found herself in Belgrade when the storm burst, and for the last four months has been in active service in the field as a working hospital nurse.

GIBBONS SIGNS FOR TOO MANY BATTLES Y. M. C. A. FIVE LOST GAME TO WHITEWATER

Hudson Promoters Seek to Bind the St. Paul Phantom to McGorty Before Clabby Mill.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 11.—Mike Gibbons was just too popular. That was the only source of the peck of trouble into which the boxing phantom slid, partly, perhaps, because he is his own manager.

But whether it was because he was his own manager or not, the fact remains he had too many dates. He was scheduled to meet Eddie McGorty of Oshkosh, the man who ticked him once, at Hudson, on January 18, and three days later he was to meet Jimmy Clabby, the Hoosier, at Milwaukee.

Mike said he was afraid he would be shy the necessary pep for both fights and he got Mike Collins, promoter of Hudson fights, to call off the McGorty affair. Collins, who still protests that Gibbons told him to arrange a fight "sometime after January 15," consents to this plan because he thinks that if Gibbons fights Clabby at Milwaukee it will be an added attraction for the Hudson fight.

The Northwest don't seem overwrought with excitement at the opening of the American checker tournament at Chicago next week, as a sporting diversion. But then, until Rod Wing players taught them the game, the Northwest don't get excited about basket ball either.

Tommy Gibbons is getting fat. He has passed the 170 mark, and with milk and eggs and nothing much to do, he may break into the heavy class. Mike Gibbons, his older brother, who taught him the game, and is now in manager has just refused a meet for him with Jack Sullivan of Buffalo, N. Y., on January 18, saying that the Gibbons family have enough dates this week.

Telegraph companies were not swayed with telegrams of sympathy to Ulrich, Canada's fastest soccer player, following the announcement that he is deaf and dumb. Some, however, ventured that a deaf and dumb hockey player with shin protectors, would be a lucky man.

Art Barry has come forth with his annual announcement of the preparedness of the Ascention A. A. basketball team. The team has scheduled a game with the Oswego team later in the month.

Joe Mattern is coming back. Love of his alma mater has caused him to desert the reported pink toas of Lehigh and return to the Gophers. He is probably good for a berth at half back, a place he left to go east.

Sportsmen want several changes in the laws of North Dakota, and these may come before the legislature within a few weeks. The suggestions follow a meeting at Fargo last summer.

The Caledonian curlers of Grand Forks, N. D., have again broken into the sporting field. They are planning a meet with Winnipeg in the Northwest. A meet with Winnipeg is planned.

Prospects seem to be brightening for the Dickinson N. D. high school basketball team. Glendive, Mont., Beach, Bismark and Mandan, are among the teams to be played. The basketball college at Fargo is also budding a good basketball team.

Fargo, N. D., is to get back in the North American League. Edward Dickinson will head the team, with Robert Unglaub as playing manager.

LEGALIZED BOXING PROVES A SUCCESS

Boxing Under State Commission in Wisconsin Eaten Kept Straight and Earns Money for State.

Boxing in Wisconsin has been put on a high plane. The success in this commonwealth of state regulation of this form of athletics, has attracted wide attention and the state has profited to the extent of over $100,000 according to reports of the state athletic commission prepared and issued today for presentation to the state legislature.

The report says in part: "There was more or less opposition to the commission when it was created by those opposed to boxing, but wide and careful administration of the law and a total elimination of the evil feature of the old time prize ring, has won thousands of friends for the game in the eyes of the public. The general public interest in the sport is reflected in the fact that during the winter season, nearly 15,000 persons have attended boxing exhibitions in the state and have paid for admission nearly a quarter of a million dollars. The commission has been more stringent in enforcing the law and there have been very few violations. Only one instance of a boxer being accused of shamming, and on being found guilty, was barred from boxing in the state for a period of one year.

Since its creation the commission has licensed thirty-four clubs, revised three licenses, and refused one. The receipt of clubs operating under the commission covering the period of the report aggregate $235,513.40. Five per cent of this amount to which is added annual license fees of club and referees make total paid into state treasury $15,690.56.

The total expense of the commission was $3,615.21, leaving the actual profit of the state at $2,075.35.

Company C. Quint Barely Win in Rough Contest Saturday Night at Nearby City, 22 to 18.

By a score of 22 to 18, the Janesville Y. M. C. A. first basketball squad lost its first game of the season on Saturday evening at Whitewater to the Company C. five of that place.

The game was played at the company's Armory gymnasium, which resembles nothing more than a good-sized room, with a low ceiling, and which is used for a dance floor between halves and after a contest.

Janesville played a good fast game all through, the feature of the contest being the work of French at center. His opponent, Johnson, by name, is six feet four inches tall, and French is credited with having out-jumped the lanky center half of the time. It was the first contest for either team this season.

Physical Director Leak is pleased with his team's showing and expects to arrange a hard schedule within the next week. Capt. John Brown feels that Janesville would have won Saturday night, but is not at all discouraged. Peterson acted as substitute in Walter's place, the latter member of the team being unable to go. Janesville led at the end of the first half 10 to 8. Following is the lineup for each side and the score:

Janesville—J. Ryan, 1. J. Brown, 2. F. French, 3. A. Mott, 4. G. Peterson, 5. L. Shattuck, substitute.

Whitewater—Mumma, 1. F. Brown, 2. Johnson, 3. Agnew, 4. Gustavson, 5. Field goals—Ryan, 3; Mott, 1; Johnson, 2; Mumma, 3; Agnew, 1; Gustavson, 1.

Free throws—Mumma, 7; Ryan, 10. Officials—Williams of Whitewater, and Noyes of Janesville. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, is not neglecting his profession because he happens to be at the front for France in the European war. Carpentier is driving a car for a general of the aviation corps. His duties give him considerable time off. He utilizes this time in boxing with his comrades and doing other training stunts. Instead of weakening him the rough life is doing Carpentier good. He is gaining in weight and expects to be a full-fledged heavyweight when the war is over.

Georges says that if he is spared he will go after all corners at the conclusion of the war. He's determined to become the champion of the world, no matter what men he will have to fight.

Benny Kauff is hailed as the Ty Cobb of the Federal league and rated by Bill Phillips, manager of the Indianapolis Reds, as being the greatest ball player in the world. But had not Al Kaiser sprained an ankle and not the Indianapolis Reds been waiting for a chance to show his class, Kaiser, who twice had failed to make good in the big leagues, was counted a regular in the Hoosier circuit when the team was training at Wichita Falls last spring. Kauff was listed as a sub outfielder. Kaiser sprained an ankle making a star from the start.

Jack Sheridan's place in the umpirical ranks of the American league next season will be taken by Dominick Mulaney, an Irishman who knows the definition of the word fight in 17 different languages. Mulaney is an importation from the Texas league. His appointment to the staff has just been announced by President Johnson. Mulaney was probably the best official in Dixie land. George Stallings saw him work two springs ago and characterized him as big league timber. It's quite possible that Dan took Stallings' tip.

Chick Evans has picked eight of the greatest golfers of the world, and has modestly omitted his own name. Harry Vardon has picked Evans as the greatest golfer in America, and he ought to know something about great players. Evans is best at medal play, every one will concede, but since when has match play taken the place over the medal round?

Who will succeed Robert McLean of Chicago as the international amateur ice skating champion? That is the question followers of the racing game are trying to answer. McLean brought his amateur career to an end the other day, by fessing up to the fact that he had received $500 a week for performing on stage at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago. McLean's crown naturally passes down to the runner-up in the indoor and outdoor race meetings last season, none other than the Toronto whirlwind, Lot Roe. The championship title therefore goes to Canada.

Mrs. Abe Attell is suing the featherweight champion, Abe, for divorce. She says he's never been the same since Johnny Kilbane beat him, and she charges, among other things, that he has beaten her repeatedly. This Abe indignantly denies. He writes: "It was bad enough when she said I ran away with the family jewels and didn't come home at night, but to charge that I beat her is the limit. Mrs. Attell is evidently trying to make a society affair of our divorce proceedings."

Allie Baschung, the Cincinnati boy whose small size keeps him out of the big leagues, played some last ball in the South Michigan league. He stole 50 bases and scored 90 runs, hitting 266 and fielding 962. Spike Lee Ross, whom the Reds traded and sent back, hit only 251 in the same company, but stole 54 bases in 112 games.

The profits of the 1914 Allentown (Pa.) fair are said to be about $10,000. The founders of the fair, sixty years ago, provided that no dividends should ever be paid, but that all profits should go into improvements. The association has spent $150,000 in improvements in the past few years, including a $100,000 grandstand.

RUSSELL WILKINSON IS ELECTED CAPTAIN

Former Janesville Boy, and Star Football Player at Lawrence, Is New Leader by Unanimous Vote.

Russell Wilkinson, formerly of Janesville, now a resident of Plattville, was on Friday morning chosen captain of the Lawrence College football team for the season of 1915.

The election was by sealed ballot. "Shortly after getting over the election, I was no fraternally feeling or personal grudge shown when the election was held, which shows the strong feeling of good friendship that exists between the Greek letter fraternities at the college."

Wilkinson is a junior in school this year, and is the only member of the past season's squad who will graduate next year. He has held the left tackle position on the team for two years, and was a substitute on the squad in his freshman year, playing about half of the time. Both years, he has been the unanimous selection as all-state left tackle, an honorary team.

On offense, he carries the ball for long gains, with a man or two hanging on him. His weight, has been a detriment to him, rather than a detriment, for he generally tips the beam at about 190. His greatest work is in defense, where he acts as a stone wall in stopping plays over his side of the line.

The majority of the "L" men last fall were members of one fraternity, Wilkinson being a member of another society. The majority could have easily changed the result but they refused to allow any group feeling to creep in. It is the first time in twelve years that a captain has been chosen unanimously in Lawrence.

Wilkinson is a Janesville product, having grown up in this city. He was a leader in high school athletics here and has many friends who will be expected to learn of the honor bestowed upon him. He has been bested upon him, Earl and Walter Tippet, both former Janesville boys, have held the captaincy of Lawrence gridiron eleven years. Walter having been the leader last fall.

YACHT REGATTA STARTS TODAY ON LAKE MENDOTA. [SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 11.—The Northwestern yacht was scheduled to start on Lake Mendota today. The races will be held under the auspices of the Mendota Yacht club.

The favorites in the class A event are the Squire People, owned by H. Peterson of Menominee, and the Aurora of the same place. The former, which is of eastern design, can spread 650 square feet of canvas, while the latter carries 800. There are half a dozen entries from Oshkosh.

HOOFEDS AFTER STUFFY McINNIS

Bill Phillips, manager of the Indianapolis Reds, has a tip that he can get "Stuffy" McInnis, the Athletic star, and is reported to have begun negotiations. Phillips needs a good first baseman, and according to the dope McInnis would exactly fill the bill.

Busy men who want help, want to buy or sell anything, or want to lease or secure a lease, can fill their wants quickly by telling them by telephone to the Gazette Want Ad Dept.

AT MYERS THEATRE. Playing eight consecutive weeks at a total gross of $37,000, is the enviable and remarkable record made at the new Gaiety Theatre in San Francisco by "The Candy Shop," the attraction that is scheduled to open here Monday, January 13, at the Myers Theatre coming direct from a long run at the La Salle Opera House, Chicago, and this same record was duplicated later at the new Novosco Theatre in Los Angeles, where it could still be playing to capacity but for the urgent call to the road to make room there for other shows.

With chorus creams and comedy confections to suit the most exacting amusement epicure, "The Candy Shop" comes here the most talked about and highly successful musical comedy show that has been offered this season. Organized and rehearsed in New York City last summer, the show opened in Cleveland and on its trip across the Continent, played everywhere to a phenomenal business even when the weather was so oppressively hot as to cause a majority of the playhouses to close down completely. Descriptively "The Candy Shop" is in the "Ziegfeld's Follies" class and the infectious humor and mirth-provoking situations and side-splitting dialogue is interpreted and delineated by what may be justly labeled an all-star cast of principals.

At the top of the list is William Rock and Maude Fulton, long since recognized as the leaders of America's greatest travesty stars.

Little Daphne Pollard, the clever Australian singing and dancing comedian, Boskie Franklyn, Jane Grant and Alfred Girard and a bunch of singing and dancing associates are acknowledged to be the best looking and most smartly groomed ever exhibited. There is never a dull moment in "The Candy Shop," the entertainment being a succession of alternating song hits, rapid-fire quips and interludes and a bunch of ludicrously funny situations and smart stage business that scores with astonishing rapidity and clock-like regularity. "The Candy Shop" engagement is limited to one performance, and promises to be locally the theatrical event of the season.

of idea it would be hard to surpass George Kleine's photo drama production of the "Last Days of Pompeii," adapted from Lord Bulwer Lytton's famous novel. Produced in Italy, these pictures bear the masterly artistic stamp that characterizes foreign productions and are revelations in the graphic beauty and skill. Mr. Kleine has practically avoided the sensation-melodramatic note and has emphasized the lyric qualities. The music and hopeless love story of the blind flower girl, Nydia, is nevertheless related with the utmost fidelity and holds the rapt attention of the spectator from beginning to end. Mr. Kleine has established a national reputation with his wonderful photo drama productions of "Quo Vadis," and "The Last Days of Pompeii," though of slightly less magnitude, will add largely to his reputation as the foremost photo drama producer of this continent. "The Last Days of Pompeii" will be the attraction at Myers Theatre Thursday, January 14th, matinee and evening.

AT THE APOLLO. Augustus Thomas, the famous American playwright, who made the opening address at the Hotel Astor Ball Room when D'Annunzio's "Cabiria" was presented privately previous to its American premiere is authority for the statement that "this great Italian film is the most accurate historical picture that has been made since the perfection of motion photograph." Mr. Thomas says: "Moloch, the tribal deity of the Ammonites, and probably identical with the Sun-god, is the principal feature of D'Annunzio's story. Moloch or Molech (originally Melek, meaning King), was intentionally mispointed in the Hebrew on the analogy of Cosheth in order to disgrace it. The title is found widely spread through the Semitic races as a divine name, but in the Old Testament it is especially connected with the religion of Ammon. History shows the sacrifice of children by fire. It is the same relation as did Cheshmoh to the Moabites. The particular rite connection with his worship was the sacrifice of children by fire. It is this service D'Annunzio has taken for his groundwork and "Cabiria" is the name of the infant saved from this barbaric practice.
